Fundamental analysis:

> (FA) measures a security's intrinsic value by examining related economic and financial factors.

> Intrinsic Value – Company Assets worth

> Intrinsic value is the value of an investment based on the issuing company's financial situation and current market and economic conditions.

> For example, you might perform a fundamental analysis of a bond's value by looking at economic factors such as interest rates and the overall state of the economy.

Then, you'd evaluate the bond market and use financial data from similar bonds.

There are four main types of derivative securities:

1. Futures:

Futures contracts are a legal agreement that allows buyers & sellers to buy or sell underlying assets at some date in future at a specific rate.

Underlying assets include stocks, bonds, commodities, interest rates, market baskets and currencies.

Futures are traded on an exchange, with the contracts already standardized. In a transaction, the parties involved must buy or sell the underlying asset.

Line Chart:

Line charts are the most basic form of charts. They are composed of a single line that links the closing prices. Generally, only the closing price is graphed, present at each point.

This is a popular type of chart used in presentations and reports to give a very general idea of historical and current direction.

It is clear as well as a simple way of getting a general idea of the price movement of a market, which is preferred by some traders.

While this kind of chart doesn't provide much insight into intraday price movements, it does consider the closing price to be more important than the open, high, or low price for a given period.

Technical Analysis:

Technical analysis as a trading discipline that is used for the evaluation of identification of trading opportunities.

It is done by analyzing the trends in statistics that are collected from trading activity as movement of price and volume.

For example, a trader might start by looking at how a security is doing over a time period.

If it's performing badly on a daily basis, the trader might then look at its long-term performance to find an optimal point of entry for the stock.

3. The pilot will test the robustness of the entire process of digital rupee creation, distribution and retail usage in real time. Different features and applications of the e₹ token and architecture will be tested in future pilots, based on the learnings from this pilot.

4. Eight banks have been identified for phase-wise participation in this pilot. The first phase will begin with four banks, viz., State Bank of India, IDBI Bank, Yes Bank and IDFC First Bank in four cities across the country. Four more banks, viz., Bank of Baroda, Union Bank of India, HDFC Bank and Kotak Mahindra Bank will join this pilot subsequently. The pilot would initially cover four cities, viz., Mumbai, New Delhi, Bengaluru and Bhubaneswar and later extend to Ahmedabad, Gangtok, Guwahati, Hyderabad, Indore, Kochi, Lucknow, Patna and Shimla. The scope of pilot may be expanded gradually to include more banks, users and locations as needed.
